

Connections

Artists and Writers in North Craven

The upland area of the Yorkshire Dales known as North Craven has stimulated the creative impulse in generations of artists and writers. Visitors have been moved by the magnificent limestone scenery and many who have lived and worked here have found inspiration

Our exhibition features artists and writers, past and present, who have been inspired by or associated with North Craven. It explores connections between people and places and the links from one person to another, some well-known, others less so

The sheer quantity of work associated with the area means that we have, inevitably, had to make omissions. However, above all, we have tried to illustrate the diversity of material available and the fascinating range of 'connections' which exist
